Answer

1. The Department of Employment's Pay TV subscription is a package containing Sky News, Sky Business and Australian Public Affairs (APAC) channels. The subscriptions provide both national and international perspectives and breaking news on a broad range of issues which both directly and indirectly impact on the work of the department.

For the period 1 March 2014 to 30 June 2014 the Department of Employment<sup>1</sup> paid $792.03 for pay TV services.

The Employment Ministers' offices are provided with the Business Premium package. For the period 1 March 2014 to 30 June 2014 the Employment Ministers' offices paid $1,299.99 for pay TV services.

For the 2013-14 financial year, costs associated with Corporate and the State Office Network functions of the former Department of Education, Employment and Workplace Relations cannot be simply attributed to the individual new departments. The value associated with these functions has been attributed to both departments.

2 and 3. The department subscribes to the newspapers and magazines listed in the table below. The reasons for the subscriptions include: monitoring of articles on government policy with reference to Government programs delivered by the department; current local, national and international employment and workplace relations issues; providing access to up to date international research and analysis on key issues to the department; and emerging issues relevant to the department.

Details of magazine and newspaper subscriptions for the Department of Employment<sup>1</sup> for the period 1 March 2014 to 30 June 2014 are below. The total cost for this period was $9,358.33.

<sup>1</sup> For the 2013-14 financial year, costs associated with Corporate and the State Office Network functions cannot be simply attributed to the individual departments. The value associated with these functions has been attributed to both departments.

4. The department purchases a range of publications in order to maintain current knowledge of government policy with reference to Government programs delivered by the department; current local, national and international employment and workplace relations issues; international research and analysis on key issues to the department; and emerging issues relevant to the department. To provide a listing of all publications would be an unnecessary diversion of resources.

For the period 1 March 2014 to 30 June 2014 the Department of Employment<sup>1</sup> paid $109,510.95 for publications. Note that the majority of this expense relates to publications purchased by the Library which is a resource shared by the Department of Employment and the Department of Education.

For the period 1 March 2014 to 30 June 2014, the Employment Ministers' offices paid $0 for publications.
