Department of Education and Training Question No. SQ15-000693

Senator O'Neill, Deborah asked on 21 October 2015, Proof Hansard page 115

AITSL - practical classroom experience

Question

Senator O'NEILL: Thank you. Now can you answer for me a question about the practical classroom experience. Do all teaching courses offered at Australian universities have a requirement for practical experience?

Mr Misson: Yes. Under the current national accreditation standards, there must be at least 80 days in an undergraduate program or 60 days in a graduate-entry program.

Senator O'NEILL: Are there any variations from state to state? Who administers and oversees that?

Mr Misson: There are no variations in that minimum requirement in the sense that jurisdictions have adopted those national standards. There are still some programs that were accredited under previously existing state based standards that have not been through the reaccreditation cycle yet. So there may be some left that were first accredited under different arrangements.

Senator O'NEILL: Would you be able to identify those and provide them on notice?

Mr Misson: I can look into that. I am not sure how easily accessible that data will be.

Answer

The Australian Institute for Teaching and School Leadership has provided the following response.

The table below provides the details of those institutions and programs that are currently accredited under state and territory arrangements as at 30 October 2015, and therefore comply with the practical experience requirements under the current national accreditation standards.
