Introduction

President's introduction

These design guidelines have been developed to provide consistency in the appearance and overall design of printed and electronic materials in frequent use throughout Fair Work Australia (FWA).

Implementation of the guidelines should lead to easier identification of FWA materials, while making the materials themselves easier to read and understand.

Proper implementation of the guidelines will contribute greatly to our already well-established reputation for competence and professionalism.

The Honourable Justice Geoffrey Giudice

President

How to use this document
These guidelines provide a set of rules for the visual presentation of printed and electronic materials published and distributed by Fair Work Australia (FWA). The purpose of these guidelines is to standardise the design and layout of all FWA communications materials, whether they be correspondence, published documents or public information materials. They deal with marks, fonts, colours and patterns, all of which contribute to the preservation of FWA's integrity and professionalism through its 'visual signature'.

Many of the templates for FWA communications material have been created using this guide. While anyone involved in the creation of materials, whether for internal or external use, should have some understanding of the guidelines, the Communications Branch are available to provide advice and assistance on how to use them effectively.

The Communications Branch is the custodian of the guidelines and is able to provide advice and assistance on its implementation. The creation of all additional document templates requires the advice of the Communications Branch.

This document will be updated to reflect changes as required.

FWA mark (logo)

FWA mark (logo)

FWA mark

The mark is an integral part of all FWA communications.

The mark guidelines are intended to create a straightforward basis for consistent and effective representation of Fair Work Australia.

The term mark has been used to describe the 'logo' to distinguish it from those of private or commercial entities.

Colours

Primary full colour

Primary black and white

Secondary full colour

Secondary black and white

Fair Work Australia mark colours

The FWA mark comprises the stylised Commonwealth Coat of Arms, and the FWA word mark. These elements are separated by a keyline and contained within a square holding shape.

The Pantone reference colours of the FWA mark are PMS 202 and PMS 425.

The mark may also be reproduced in black and white.

For four-colour process printing and laser printing, CMYK breakdowns are provided.

The RGB (Red, Green, Blue) values provided are suitable for on-screen projection of the mark colours.

Spot colour	CMYK breakdown	RGB breakdown
PMS 202	10 / 97 / 61 / 48	130 / 36 / 51
PMS 425	38 / 28 / 21 / 63	86 / 90 / 92

Minimum size and clear space

Minimum size

20mm

Clear space

x

5x

Note: The size of the mark on all A4 documents must be 37mm x 37mm. The mark must be right aligned at the top of the document. These specifications are detailed in the following pages for specific document layouts.

Minimum size

Minimum size specifications are provided to ensure the mark is reproduced effectively at a small size. Minimum size specifications must be observed in all applications.

Where there is a question of the quality of the reproduction, the mark should be used at a size larger than the minimum size.

The mark may not be reproduced at a size where the holding shape is less than 20mm in width.

Clear space

To maintain the clarity and integrity of the FWA mark, minimum 'clear space' must be observed in all applications.

Clear space is the minimum surface area surrounding the mark that must remain free of any other graphic elements or text.

Wherever possible, maintain more clear space around the mark than the minimum specified.

The minimum clear space for the mark is determined by the x value taken from 20% of the height of the holding shape of the FWA mark.

Background colours

Background colours

Where possible, reproduce the FWA mark in full colour on a white background.

The secondary mark appears when the mark is required to be applied to patterns, images or coloured backgrounds. The secondary mark also appears on a metallic or glass background for signage purposes.

Incorrect use of the Fair Work Australia mark

The FWA mark may not be redrawn or altered in any way under any circumstances.

The FWA mark may only be reproduced in the style shown throughout these guidelines.

These examples show various ways in which the FWA mark might be incorrectly produced.

1 Do not compress, extend or distort the mark in any way.

2 Do not alter the relationship between the elements of the mark.

3 Do not reproduce the word mark in another typeface.

4 Do not alter the colours of the mark.

5 Do not place the primary mark on a coloured or metallic background as the primary mark's internal fill is intended for a white background only.

6 Do not place the secondary mark on a red background that does not provide a sufficient level of contrast.

7 Do not rotate the mark.

8 Do not infringe upon clear space or add other text to the mark.

9 Do not place the secondary mark on a photographic or illustrative background that does not provide a sufficient
 level of contrast.

Secondary design elements—patterns

Pattern

Pattern with stylised wattle

Secondary design elements—patterns

A series of patterns have been developed as secondary design elements that form an important element of the overall FWA look.

All patterns are designed in the FWA colour palette. The main pattern is based on a grid of squares to reflect the shape of the mark. Subtle shifts in tone provide additional visual interest.

Another important part of the secondary language is the stylised wattle pattern. This may be used in varying scale, tone and contrast to add depth and visual interest to public communications.

Using the mark within patterns

Correct use of the mark within the grid pattern

Incorrect use of the mark within the grid pattern

Using Fair Work Australia mark within patterns

When using the FWA mark together with the grid pattern, the mark must fit within the grid, relative to the size of the squares.

Secondary design elements—reduced patterns

A reduced pattern has been designed for applications where the space is limited, such as page layouts or areas taken up with photographs.

This pattern should not run under body text in brochures where it may impede legibility.

Unfair dismissal

1. Overview of the unfair dismissal laws

What is unfair dismissal?

An unfair dismissal occurs where an employee makes an unfair dismissal remedy application and Fair Work Australia (FWA) finds that:

- the employee was dismissed, and

- the dismissal was harsh, unjust or unreasonable, and

- the dismissal was not a case of genuine redundancy, and

- the dismissal was not consistent with the Small Business Fair Dismissal Code, where the employee was employed by a small business.

A small business is a business that employs less than 15 full-time equivalent employees.

Who can make an unfair dismissal remedy application?

To make an unfair dismissal remedy application an employee must be covered by the unfair dismissal laws and eligible to make an application.

Who is covered by the unfair dismissal laws?

Only employees covered by the national workplace relations system are covered by the unfair dismissal laws. (Other employees may have access to remedies under State legislation). The national workplace relations system covers those who are:

- employed by a constitutional corporation (including Pty Ltd companies)

- employed in Victoria, the Northern Territory or the Australian Capital Territory

- employed by the Commonwealth or a Commonwealth authority

- a waterside employee, maritime employee or flight crew officer in interstate or overseas trade or commerce.

Who is not covered by the unfair dismissal laws?

The laws do not cover:

- contractors

- employees who resign and were not forced to do so by the conduct of their employer

Core visual elements

FWA mark

The Fair Work Australia (FWA) mark—sometimes described as a logo—is the distinctive `signature´ by which FWA is recognised. The FWA mark comprises the Commonwealth Coat of Arms (Stylised version 2R) and the word mark, separated by a keyline.

Word mark

A word mark is the name component only of an organisation´s mark (or logo).

Keyline

A keyline is a printed rule (line). In this instance it is the line that appears in the FWA logo between the stylised coat of arms and the word mark.

Clear space

To protect the integrity and legibility of the marks, a surrounding clear space was determined for each mark. No other graphic elements: type, rules (lines) or symbols may be placed within that clear space.

Typeface

A typeface has been set for each document with varying weights, sizes and line spacing.
Templates have been created with these details and should be used to maintain consistency.

Secondary visual elements

Secondary visual elements comprise the colours, patterns and grids that complement and support the organisation's core visual elements.

Secondary visual elements that are referred to within these guidelines are:

Secondary colour palette/secondary colours

This is the limited colour palette chosen to support and complement the colours used in the FWA mark.

Secondary design elements—patterns

A combination of subtle patterns and elements derived from the FWA mark's square format and the Commonwealth Coat of Arms.

Secondary grid pattern

A grid pattern derived from the FWA mark´s square format.
