AUSTRALIAN INSTITUTE OF MARINE SCIENCE

Outcome: Enhanced scientific knowledge supporting the protection and sustainable development of Australia's marine resources

DEST Question No. E183_04

Senator Carr asked on 4 June 2003, EWRE Hansard page 285

Question:

Has the number of joint supervisory arrangements between AIMS and JCU decreased in recent times? Give details for the last 3 yrs?

Answer:

Joint supervision of JCU students

AIMS has provided the following response.

AIMS maintains a strong contribution to future capabilities in marine S&T through joint supervision of graduate and postgraduate students. James Cook University maintains a significant role in this effort.

The numbers of students fluctuate from year to year but overall effort has been maintained. Numbers for the last three years are:

2000-01	31
2001-02	48
2002-03	38
