Question:

What are the 12 reviews? 31 May 2006, EWRE, p.13: Senator WONG—Without trying to put too fine a point on it, we have your office with annual costs of over $1 million, with various components of that remuneration being housing, travel et cetera. Do you think the public and the organisation are getting value for money? Dr Garrett—I think it must come back to what we are delivering. Looking at what this organisation is achieving, we have had 12 independent external reviews of our divisions in the last two years—independent international panels looking at the quality of our science and the impact of what we deliver—and we are shortly to release a flagship performance review, a copy of which we will obviously make sure you get at a very early stage. We want to be judged by the outputs of that program.
