Question

Indigenous Boarding Schools

How many permanent full-time (or full-time equivalent) jobs are expected to be created after the initial construction is complete?

Answer

The Indigenous boarding facilities may provide a source of employment, both in terms of construction and staffing of the facilities, although it is too early at this stage, to project with certainty, the number of permanent full-time (or full-time equivalent) jobs that will be created at each site. They will contribute to the economies of the regions in which they are located.
