Question

LOCATING INFO ON SWA WEBSITE

Where does one find the agreed National Standards about health and safety representative training on the Safe Work Australia website?

Answer

Safe Work Australia has provided the following response.

There is no National Standard for health and safety representative training. Safe Work Australia is currently developing a training model for health and safety representatives which will be available for implementation with the model work health and safety legislation at the end of 2011.
