Topic:                               CCTV cameras
Question:                            13
Written                               Senator Ronaldson

Date set by the committee for the return of answer: 2 December 2011

Have there been any complaints that security cameras not designed for night usage have been installed in certain locations around parliament and that this has resulted in security footage in many places around parliament house becoming difficult to view after dark?

Answer

- 1       External cameras have a “night mode” configuration, which automatically adjusts to the available levels of ambient light.
- 2       Following the installation of six new cameras in September 2011, it was identified that the night mode was not functioning properly due to incorrect settings. This has been rectified.
