Australian Government Solicitor
Australian Government Solicitor (AGS) is a statutory authority and a government business enterprise (GBE). It operates on a fully commercial and competitive basis and does not receive any funding from budget or other parliamentary appropriations. As a GBE, AGS is not required to publish information about its contracts as part of AusTender or in its annual report, or to publish an annual procurement plan (APP). From time to time, AGS engages consultants to undertake specific projects or activities, generally in the areas of corporate and business support. Over the period 1 November 2007 to 23 February 2009 (the date when question on notice 115 was asked), AGS paid in the order of $1.48m for consultancy services (excluding GST). AGS considers that the preparation of detailed answers to each of the parts of the question on notice for all this period would represent a significant cost to AGS's business and would be an unreasonable diversion of AGS's resources. The new consultancies entered into by AGS since February 2009 are identified below. In 2009-10, AGS anticipates engaging the services of property, records management and IT infrastructure solution architecture consultants. The timing and scale of these consultancies have yet to be settled. In addition, AGS has an AGS Advisory Board comprising a number of external business people who provide management advisory services to the CEO of AGS. During 2009-10, several members are likely to be re-appointed/appointed to the Advisory Board by the CEO on the nomination of AGS's shareholder ministers (the Attorney-General and the Minister for Finance and Deregulation). The average annual cost of operating the Advisory Board is in the order of $115,000 (excluding GST).
