1.	MHAJ	Customs	Humphries	Mandatory reporting of serious misconduct, corrupt or criminal activity	Senator HUMPHRIES: You made reference [in your opening statement] to the new powers conferred on the Customs Service. These include integrity testing, power to make a declaration, an officer's employment has been terminated as a result of serious misconduct et cetera. Senator HUMPHRIES: Have there been any instances of mandatory reporting of serious misconduct, corrupt or criminal activity since that requirement existed? Mr Pezzullo: Yes. Senator HUMPHRIES: How many such cases? Mr Pezzullo: I will take the exact number of reports on notice. Some of them—I know because the reports come to me regularly—were what I would call retrospective mandatory reporting, which is to say, 'The following officers have been charged. They have appeared in court, so they are known entities. And I had a relationship with that officer—we joined together and we went to a party with them once.' So there is that sort of level of reporting. That is triaged and examined and in some cases it leads to further inquiries. In other cases it might be, 'Okay, thank you for reporting it.' So the volume of the reports has to be discounted for what sort of actionable leads emerge from the report. I think I would prefer to come back to you on both of those. Senator HUMPHRIES: It would be interesting to know what reporting has	L&C 13-14 29/05/2013

2.	МНАЈ	Customs	Humphries	End date for pilot phase of drug and alcohol testing	for alcohol or drugs. Mr Pezzullo: Yes. Senator HUMPHRIES: Are those tests random and unannounced? Mr Pezzullo: Yes. Senator HUMPHRIES: How many officers are we talking about. Mr Pezzullo: The head count of the service, including part-time employees, is around 5,600. Our average staffing level is 5,100—the full-time-equivalent workforce is 5,100. Senator HUMPHRIES: So it is roughly 10 per cent of your full-time workforce. In a full year of operation, are you on average expecting to get through half or three-quarters of the workforce.	L&C 14 29/05/2013

					Senator HUMPHRIES: I understand that it was two members of the public in dinghy who intercepted the arrival. Is that true? Mr Pezzullo: I do not think that they intercepted the boat. Some members of the public might have reported. I will have to check. Senator HUMPHRIES: Can you give us a brief description of exactly what happened? Mr Pezzullo: Having just been joined by Rear Admiral Johnston, I will make some introductory remarks and then ask the admiral to go into some detail. Specifically on the point asked, on that day at approximately 2.45 pm Australian eastern standard time the Geraldton Port Authority—I do not know how many members of that authority—and a member of the public advised Customs and Border Protection of a possible SIEV inside the harbour limits. Senator HUMPHRIES: Inside the harbour? Mr Pezzullo: Yes. At approximately 3.05 pm Australian eastern standard time on the same day, a Customs and Border Protection officer—our officer in Geraldton—who was operating with the assistance of the WA police, and we are grateful for the assistance that they were able to provide, boarded the Geraldton Port Authority vessel, the name of which I am told is Jorgensen. They intercepted the vessel within the port. So a combination of the port authority, one of our officers and WA police.

					Senator XENOPHON: I have had discussions with Tindo Solar. They are a small company with a first-class product. I hope they do not mind me saying this, but they were quoted something like a million dollars to run an anti-dumping case. They just do not have those sorts of resources in terms of the legal fees. 					sorts of matters. Ms Vivian: With the AIG group there is now an officer who has been particularly put in place to assist companies that cannot afford to run the anti-dumping investigations to put some of their applications together. Senator XENOPHON: But they will not be able to run a case for someone. They can give general advice, but they cannot actually run a case. Ms Vivian: No. They assist people in putting together their application to make a case. Senator XENOPHON: But you realise that it is a very specialised and technical field that requires an enormous amount of evidence gathering, which is itself quite expensive. It means going to China and forensically looking at their books. Ms Vivian: Certainly they are some of the costs that we bear. Mr Pezzullo: That work is undertaken by Commonwealth officials, currently by officers of Ms Vivian's division and shortly by officers of the Anti-Dumping Commission who will be based in Melbourne. So, I do not know, and I will have to take on notice, what costs a company bears in forming the application. Senator XENOPHON: Can I get a separate briefing on notice with the department in relation to this and perhaps with representatives from Tindo Solar? Mr Pezzullo: Yes we can do that.	Question

Rear Adm. Johnston: The answer to your question is: yes, Customs and Border Protection, with AFMA, have lodged a submission for a dumping permit through to SEWPaC—that is correct Senator BIRMINGHAM: When did the previous permit expire? Rear Adm. Johnston: It was a Coastwatch approval in around 2005, but I would need to confirm that. Senator BIRMINGHAM: That is a long period of expiration, if it was around 2005 through to lodging a new application for a permit on 11 February this year. 8.	MHAJ	Customs	Kroger	Staff attrition rate	Senator KROGER: Thank you very much. I am interested to know how many personnel are in the Border Protection Service? Mr Pezzullo: In the service generally? Senator KROGER: Yes. What is the total number? Mr Pezzullo: Our average staffing level is about 5,100 full-time equivalents. Senator KROGER: And most of them are full time? Mr Pezzullo: Most are full time, but if you factor in part-time employees, people on leave and whatnot, people who have got some kind of standing as a border protection officer, our headcount is north of that—it is about 5,600. But our average staffing level across the year—paid full-time equivalent employees—is 5,100. Senator KROGER: What is the attrition rate? Mr Pezzullo: It is quite low. It would be single digits. I might have to take the precise number on notice, though. Senator KROGER: Has there been any change to that attrition rate over the last few years, or has it been consistently—? Mr Pezzullo: Unless Ms Grant has got a detailed brief in her folder I would probably prefer to give you an accurate databased answer. I think it is fair to say that it has been stable over time. Senator KROGER: While I am happy for you to take on notice what the attrition rate is, given the way in which you have provided statistics before would you do that on a calendar year or financial year basis? Mr Pezzullo: I am sure we could do both. Most would be financial year because our accounting and financial statements are all done financial year, but I am sure we could work a separation for the calendar year. Senator KROGER: Financial year basis is fine, but an indication of the trend line for the last five years would be helpful. Mr Pezzullo: Okay, Senator.	L&C 26 29/05/2013

Ms Vivian: No. It is of a confidential nature at this point in time, if we had received anything. Senator COLBECK: Have you had any informal discussions with SPC Ardmona around what their options might be in regard to this? Ms Vivian: At this stage, I am not aware of any discussions taking place. Mr Pezzullo: It is possible that we have. If we have, we can come back to you on notice. Senator COLBECK: If you could provide that advice, I would appreciate it. Senator HUMPHRIES: You gave us some figures earlier on for the number of boat and passenger arrivals for both the calendar year 2012 and the financial year to date, 2012-13. They do not tally with the sorts of figures that we have been keeping, exactly, so would it be possible for you to table for both of those periods the actual boat, date of arrival, number of passengers and number of crew, please. Mr Pezzullo: We will. Can you, just for the sake of the drafting officers, clarify which years you want. Senator HUMPHRIES: You gave me the calendar year 2012 and the financial year 2012-13 to date. Mr Pezzullo: We will do that. Senator BRANDIS: How many years was that in the making, Professor? Prof. Croucher: The exact period would be set out at the beginning. On recollection—but I would have to confirm this—it was approximately a two-year inquiry. Senator BRANDIS: Is it your practice within the commission to attribute a cost in terms of hours spent by individual commissioners, and the cost of consultants and so on, to work out how much particular reports cost and can you tell me specifically how much that report cost? Prof. Croucher: That was some years ago. We have done a lot of work since then. Senator BRANDIS: I understand; you will take that on notice.
12.	AG	ALRC	Brandis	ALRC's work program	Senator BRANDIS: So, you have had a conversation—just one—with the Attorney-General about the ALRC's work program. Is that right? Prof. Croucher: Yes. Senator BRANDIS: And you are not sure whether that included a reference to this particular matter. Prof. Croucher: Not specifically. I took the call from a hospital room, so I was somewhat distracted at the time. I cannot say as a matter of fact whether that was in it. The work program was in the half-hour discussion I had with the Attorney. Senator BRANDIS: That is fine. I am not trying to trick you. I just want to know what the best of your recollection is. But you also recall having a conversation with a staffer in the Attorney-General's office specifically about this? Prof. Croucher: That is correct. Senator BRANDIS: Just one conversation? Prof. Croucher: One conversation is what I recall. I was to meet the Attorney, but he was not available, so I had a discussion with a staffer. Senator BRANDIS: When was that? Prof. Croucher: I could pin it down by diary reference. Senator BRANDIS: Can you take that on notice and let me know? Prof. Croucher: I certainly can.	L&C 56 29/05/2013

Senator HEFFERNAN: What are the conditions under which I can take sick leave and compassionate leave? And what is the history of that leave amongst the bench? Mr Soden: I do not have that kind of information at my fingertips, Senator. I would have to take that on notice. Senator HEFFERNAN: As the minister knows, I have been asking these questions in various estimates. Just so you know, for instance, in DAFF, the median—which is the halfway point rather than the average— Mr Soden: Yes, I understand that. Senator HEFFERNAN: is 15 days a year sick leave. Mr Soden: To be clear: are you talking about judges of the Federal Court? Senator HEFFERNAN: I am, which is pertinent to this. Surely there are some— Mr Soden: I will have to take that on notice—but it will be tiny. Senator HEFFERNAN: Yes, that will be good. Mr Soden: I will take that on notice. Senator HEFFERNAN: Could we have on notice the record of allocated and authorised sick leave and compassionate leave from the bench—the record of how many work days. I do not know how you would manage it, but I would be interested to see just what the work record is. Mr Soden: We will take that on notice and get you what we can.
14.	AG	Family Court/Federal Circuit Court	Brandis	Budget notes	Senator BRANDIS: Thank you. Where is the effect of that change in the accounting treatment due to the transparency ushered in by Operation Sunlight explained in the notes to the accounts? Mr Harriott: In terms of budget, the notes to the accounts are quite abbreviated. We are not required to provide the equivalent level of notes that you would do in the annual financial statements. Senator BRANDIS: Was that another reform ushered in by Operation Sunlight? Mr Harriott: They are different documents. If you look at the annual report and the complete financial statements, you will see those note disclosures fully and transparently. 15.	AG	Family Court/Federal Circuit Court	Brandis	Time spent by Family Court judges on circuit work	Senator BRANDIS: What proportion of the judge days of the Family Court judges is spent on circuit work? Mr R Foster: I would have to take that on notice. The Family Court now lists in major regional centres. It sits in Cairns, obviously. It sits in Darwin where it does not have a permanent presence. It does not regularly circuit to rural and regional Australia, that is largely now a matter for the Federal Circuit Court, but it is the policy of the court that if there is a matter that requires the attention of a justice then the Chief Justice would make a judge available to sit in a rural or regional area. Senator BRANDIS: That was what I was wondering about. How regularly does that happen? Mr R Foster: It happens, I know it happens reasonably frequently in Dubbo. Off the top of my head I do not really have that detail in my mind. It does not happen as much as it used to, but primarily that work is picked up by the Federal Circuit Court.	L&C 71 29/05/2013
16.	AG	Family Court/Federal Circuit Court	Brandis	Split of Federal Circuit Court work	Senator BRANDIS: Turning to your acting Federal Circuit Court of Australia CEO hat, can you tell me what proportion of general federal law work nationally is handled by the Federal Circuit Court? Mr R Foster: I will ask Mr Agnew to address that question. Mr Agnew: I am not sure how you are putting that question, whether it is in terms of the split of the general federal law filings between the Federal Court and the Federal Circuit Court? Senator BRANDIS: The general federal law, I mean leave out the High Court, obviously. The general federal law, as I understand the expression, is always used by the courts themselves, by the non-family law component. So given that the Family Court deals only with family law matters and the only other Federal Court is the Federal Court of Australia, I think the best way to approach answering my question is to say what proportion of matters other than family law matters are dealt with by the FCCA as opposed to the Federal Court. Mr Agnew: Sorry, are you asking of the total pie, how much the Federal Court does as opposed to Federal Circuit Court? Senator BRANDIS: Essentially. Mr Agnew: I do not have that figure, I would have to take that on notice. Senator BRANDIS: Roughly.	L&C 71 29/05/2013

Is that correct? Mr Sheehan: Yes. Senator HUMPHRIES: This project was announced before the budget—last year, in fact. How much of the allocated funding of $12 million has already been spent and how much is yet to be spent? Mr Sheehan: I think that is probably a question that we would have to check with Geoscience Australia, because all the funding went to them to build the portal. We wrote the guidelines. It is the total number of claims of alleged fraud of AGDRP from November 2011 to date against the total number of claims of assistance. Let's make it consistent—for each of the last two financial years; that is, this almost completed year and the previous year. How many of those have become a debt payable to the Commonwealth for fraud or in ineligibility or whatever it might be? How many of those debts have been waived due to financial difficulties or for any other reason? And how much has been recovered to date of those that have not been waived? Mr Wilkins: Sorry, I should correct myself. I am informed it is FaHCSIA that actually does crunch the numbers on this. My CFO tells me that FaHCSIA does the numbers, the Department of Human Services does the administration and we own the program. Senator HUMPHRIES: Right! It should be very easy, then, to track down the information, won't it?

AG/MEM	Program 1.7 – EMA	Furner	NDRRA payments to primary producers	Senator FURNER: I was interested in getting some feedback on the announcement from 30 April this year as a result of the eligible primary producers for the $25,000 grants. Do you have any feedback on how that is progressing and the numbers of successful applicants? Mr Sheehan: At this stage we do not have any data. It is something that we could consult with Queensland on. Because the payments to the primary producers are part of the national disaster recovery and relief arrangements, the Commonwealth provides a share of those payments, depending on what threshold the state has reached, up to a maximum of 75 per cent, but the administration is actually done at state level. We would be able to check, I think, and get some data for you. Senator FURNER: Yes, I will put that on notice. Some of them, if I might be so bold as to say, were welcome suggestions dealing with hoax threats and hostage taking, but there were, I respectfully suggest, a few that give me cause for concern. I am looking around because I notice the minister has departed, and I suspect there may be some policy questions in relation to what I am about to ask. But let me try, in any event. Recommendation 13 was about omitting the subsection that 'deals with a situation where an organisation directly praises the doing of a terrorist act'; recommendation 16 was about 'exemptions for providing training to or receiving training from a terrorist organisation for purposes unconnected with the commission of a terrorist act'; recommendation 23 was about the repeal of the Criminal Code section 102.8 'Associating with a terrorist organisation'; and recommendation 39 was about the repeal of preventive detention legislation. Does the Attorney-General agree with those four recommendations? Mr Wilkins: I cannot answer the questions. Senator ABETZ: Minister, I am not sure what you heard and I fully	L&C 85 29/05/2013

Senator ABETZ: What I want to ask is, for instance, what public purposes are served by making it legal to receive training from a terrorist organisation if it is not connected with a terrorist act? Do we really want or need al-Qaeda teaching Australians first-aid or bookkeeping or propaganda techniques? I raise this very seriously. When will the Attorney-General respond to the COAG review on counterterrorism? Mr Wilkins: I do not have a time line on that. The other report that is out is also the monitor's report, which deals with overlapping recommendations. The two reports are not entirely consistent but they do overlap. I do not know what the time frame is. That is something that you will need to put to the Attorney-General, I think.	Question

25.	AG	ASIO	Abetz	Hezbollah	Senator ABETZ: It has long been reported that Hezbollah operates in Australia and on 27 April the Australian reported comments by Sunni cleric Sheikh Bilal Radwan that there are at least three Hezbollah sleeper cells in Australia. Hezbollah has been involved in terrorist attacks around the world, and earlier this year the Bulgarian government found that an Australian citizen was involved in a Hezbollah terrorist attack that killed six people in Bulgaria on 18 July 2012. Meanwhile, Cyprus convicted another self-confessed Hezbollah operative of attempting to prepare terrorist attacks in that country. Do the Australian security authorities concur that Hezbollah has sleeper cells in this country and, if so, what can you reveal about what is being done to monitor their behaviour? Mr Wilkins: I cannot really answer that question. You can appreciate that I run basically a policy shop. It is really a question for ASIO and the AFP. Senator ABETZ: Albeit, the policy framework under which they operate will impact on what they do. Mr Wilkins: Yes, but what I am saying is that I do not collect that sort of intelligence. I cannot really answer your question. I am not sure that ASIO would want to answer your question in an open session like this, either. Senator ABETZ: I fully accept that. 30.	AG	Program 1.1	Wright	International	Let me just say that the scheme does not include that. Senator XENOPHON: Perhaps you could take on notice what the actual policy of the government is in relation to defending claims where there is a limitation of time—point taken—in relation to the Defence Abuse Response Taskforce. 		- ILHRD		obligations in relation to the detention of children	of young people and the nature of the detention that they are undertaking, and I am interested in knowing what our international obligations would be about that. Mr Manning: There are obligations of a general nature in relation to anyone who is detained—in, for example, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights—for example, obligations in relation to humane treatment. There are obligations in relation to not detaining people arbitrarily which apply to adults and children equally. Then there are also obligations in relation to the Convention on the Rights of the Child about using detention as a matter of last resort—however, Australia has reservations in relation to those obligations, mainly borne as a result of the geographic situation in Australia. Senator WRIGHT: What do you mean by that? Mr Manning: In the sense that, at the time, Australia did not think it could necessarily guarantee that, because its size meant that there were benefits in detaining children close to their families which could not be guaranteed in all circumstances—which meant that guarantees about not detaining children with adults, for example, could not be guaranteed. Senator WRIGHT: If it is helpful, perhaps you could take that on notice and give a bit more specificity about the obligations in relation to children as opposed to the general obligations about detention. Mr Wilkins: We might be able to refer you to some articles that deal with this. Mr Manning: Certainly we can take it on notice and cite relevant articles on the Convention on the Rights of the Child, for example, and give some more details about Australia's reservations and declarations. Senator WRIGHT: Thank you, I would appreciate that. Perhaps you can also look at this when you are answering that question: I am interested in whether any of these obligations specifically address the issue of detaining people under the age of 18 in adult facilities. Mr Phelan You are right: when it comes to non-content data, under the Telecommunications (Interception and Access) Act the AFP can have access to that data by way of an internal authorisation Senator XENOPHON: Does that relate to getting access to Facebook and social media sites as well? Mr Phelan: No, because things like Facebook, Google and so on are overseas. Depending on the entity themselves, if we want to get details of those particular individuals we have to make a request to the United States and, more often than not, that requires some sort of mutual assistance request. Senator XENOPHON: Are there requests? Have requests been made to the United States in relation to Facebook and Google? Mr Phelan: We have made a number of requests over the time. 				Telecommunications (Interception and Access) Act	Mr Negus: I do not think we could. I mean, we do not specify real estate agents or anyone else for this process. Senator XENOPHON: You are elevating us you know, comparing us to real estate agents! Mr Negus: I hesitated because I did not want to bring too many people into the mix, but we do not categorise people by what their job is, whether they be journalists, members of parliament or police officers. Senator XENOPHON: Commissioner, come on—you know very well that members of parliament are more likely to get information about malfeasance or from a whistleblower than a real estate agent, from someone in the public service. I am not sure that Century 21 Belconnen gets too many calls from people dissatisfied with— Mr Negus: You may be surprised! But can I take that on notice? I will have a look at what I can disclose to you. Senator XENOPHON: Why can't you tell us whether any members of parliament have been the subject of these authorisations? Mr Negus: Well, I do not recall any, off the top of my head, and we are talking about five investigations of leaks in each of the last two years. I do not recall any. These things are not done without proper consideration of the requirement here, and also understanding and respecting some of the issues you have raised here; that is certainly part of what we do. 					Senator RHIANNON: How many Sri Lankan police have the AFP trained?
					Mr Colvin: I do not have the numbers. What I do have is the types of training that we have provided.
					Senator RHIANNON: Could you take it on notice to provide the numbers and provide details about the types of training.
					Mr Colvin: I can give you the types of training now and I will take it on notice to provide you with the numbers. The training courses have included management of investigations; development for individual police officer programs; criminal intelligence analyst training; money laundering investigations training; and train the trainer. Of course, it is our desire that these agencies build up their own capacity and do not need us to do this training with them. We have also assisted with 20 computer based training learning modules on police best practice. We have done that in partnership with the United Nations Office of Drugs and Crime.
					Mr Negus: Can I just add—and this goes back to questions we have previously at estimates—that the issue of human rights remains central to all of the training we deliver. Human rights to the Australian standard and to our international obligations, and any training we would deliver during that period of time in the areas you have talked about, certainly would contain elements consistent with Australia's stand on human rights.
					Senator RHIANNON: You use the word 'elements', which could be either minimal or considerable. Could you take it on notice to provide details of what training that is and how large a component of the training it is.
					Mr Negus: Certainly.
					Senator RHIANNON: Does the AFP provide training to the Sri Lankan Coast Guard?
					Mr Colvin: No, we do not.
					Senator RHIANNON: Does the AFP provide training to the Sri Lankan military?
					Mr Colvin: No, we do not.
					Senator RHIANNON: For either of those, have you ever done so?
					Mr Colvin: I do not believe so. I will correct the record if there has been. I might add that that it would only be in an instance where we are conducting training with the Sri Lankan Police Service. It may be that an officer from the Sri Lankan Navy investigative component is in that training but that would be very rare and unusual because our liaison and training is with the police.

					Senator RHIANNON: So you will take it on notice to find out whether the military have been present when you have been training police? Mr Colvin: Yes, we will. Senator RHIANNON: How much money has the AFP spent on this training? Mr Colvin: I have records for 2012-13, the current financial year. We have spent approximately $540,000, of which about half is ODA funding and half is our departmental funding that we have been appropriated under various new policy initiatives. Senator RHIANNON: If you do not have the figures, could you take it on notice to tell me how much money has been spent on training since the end of the civil war in 2009. Mr Colvin: I will have to take that on notice, yes. Senator RHIANNON: Could you take it on notice to give us a specific example of where the AFP has interacted with your counterparts in Sri Lanka to recommend changes to address these ongoing allegations about torture and rape. Mr Colvin: That will be part of our answer to you in relation to the training because that is implicit any training that we have delivered that has a human rights nature. 					Mr Drennan: To my knowledge, we do not have a specific person. But we certainly support and contribute to that plan in general, particularly through our UN missions and non UN missions, where we are actively involved in developing women in policing, which is in accordance with that plan. We have some quite specific programs in which our people are involved in achieving the objectives of that plan. Senator RHIANNON: Could you give us some more specifics, please. I am interested in what measures the AFP have put in place to implement this plan in Afghanistan, Syria, Mali and Sri Lanka.
					Mr Drennan: In just about all the countries where we are doing capacity development work there is a focus on programs for women. Particularly in the Solomon Islands, we have done quite a few programs that support the development of women in policing. Senator RHIANNON: Apart from Afghanistan and the Solomon Islands, any other countries? Mr Drennan: Pretty much right through the Pacific. In all of the Pacific police development programs there are specific programs for women. It is a particular focus for us. Even in PNG we have done some specific programs. In Timor Leste we have done specific programs beyond women in policing but also catering for domestic violence and victims of domestic violence. Without trying to get specific for every particular country, it is a general theme of focus for us in all of our capacity development work in line with the objectives from the UN. We also have two senior officers from the IDG, one who is the assistant commissioner in charge, and also one former commander who was in charge of our deployment to Timor Leste who are actively involved in that program. But if you could provide details on the numbers so that we can compare that to the males who you training and interacting with, that would be good. I would like to know how many women are you interacting with and training. If you could provide some more details on both the content and the outcome of these programs, that would be good. Mr Negus: We are happy to do that. But we need to acknowledge upfront that we are starting from a pretty low base here in many of these countries. Women in policing roles is at the starting point. We are doing what we can to develop those people. What I was going to add was that we also second people into the AFP, particularly the international deployment group. Women come from Pacific countries and work for three or six months here in Australia and learn the skills so that they can apply them in their own countries. We are happy to provide all those details. But I want to warn you that it is starting from a low base and you would be— Senator RHIANNON: Very much so. That is why it is important to get it down—so that we can see how it develops. If you can give the quantitative figures so that we can make the comparison that would be good. Mr Negus: Certainly. We will do that. Senator RHIANNON: Is there a government coordination point to manage interdepartmental coordination with civil society efforts relating to the implementation of this plan? Mr Drennan: To give you a precise answer, I would need to take that on notice. I suspect that it is through the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade. They take on a coordination role in relation to the development of any of those programs that are of an international nature. If it had come to ASIO's attention on or before 30 August that this man should not have been cleared for community detention and that he was indeed the terrorist then I do not understand why it took until 14 November for the Australian Federal Police to arrive at the same conclusion. Their evidence is finished. I cannot ask Commissioner Negus now. But there was a period, on your evidence, of 2½ months between 30 August 2012, when ASIO had decided that the man was a terrorist, and 14 November 2012, when the Australian Federal police made the same decision, even though the matter had been referred to them, according to Mr Negus, on 26 June. Did you communicate your conclusion of 30 August to the Australian Federal Police? Mr Irvine: I do not know that. I cannot answer that. Senator BRANDIS: Can you take that on notice for me, Mr Irvine. Mr Irvine: Yes, I would have to take that on notice. It would not normally be our practice on a case referred to us by the Department of Immigration and Citizenship to automatically refer it to the Australian Federal Police as well, and I do not see any evidence that we have done so. If it was a police matter, say fraud or a breach of other than the bankruptcy act, we would refer it to the police. It really depends on the facts of the case. Senator WILLIAMS: If there was clear evidence of criminal wrongdoing—I am not mentioning anyone here—and you thought that evidence was clear and it was obvious, would you either send a brief to the DPP or inform the police? Ms Ingram: If it was a breach of the Bankruptcy Act we would prepare a brief of evidence and refer it. If it was fraud or a breach of the Crimes Act or something else, or it was a state matter, we would refer it to the appropriate authorities. Senator WILLIAMS: To quote the newspaper at Grafton, it says this is public knowledge: Bankrupt Yamba boatbuilder George Edward Lousick has elected to face two charges levelled against him in the District Court for deception Are you familiar with that case? I think that there are probably restrictions on how far they could go public because it does deal with a lot of people's private affairs, evidence, reputations et cetera. Mr Wilkins: I am perfectly happy to release it publicly. I am just saying that I would like to take advice as to whether that is appropriate, whether there is anything that restricts me in terms of the Australian Public Sector Management Act, and whether there is anything in the Privacy Act that prevents me from doing that. All that you are saying is that where there is a multi-agency investigation then obviously officers for other agencies are involved, but that is not a comment on the deployment of your agencies' resources, is it? Mr Moss: Indeed this investigation is being conducted under the framework of the Law Enforcement Integrity Commissioner Act, and in that sense it is the Integrity Commissioner's investigation. These staff are made available to me on request. They are, in some cases, authorised as ACLEI officers. Senator BRANDIS: How many of them have been authorised as ACLEI officers? 					Senator HUMPHRIES: If you could take that on notice, please, that would be useful. Can you say exactly who first advised Customs and Border Protection? Mr Pezzullo: Yes. I am advised that an officer of the port authority did so—I do not know if it is privatised there, but it is a state entity—along with a member of the public, either conjointly or separately, advised us at 2.45 pm on that day. Senator HUMPHRIES: Okay.
122	AG	Program 1.6 - NSLPD	Abetz	Hezbollah's external security organisation	Senator ABETZ: Finally, Australia currently bans Hezbollah's external security organisation, but it does not ban the entire organisation, which enables it to operate in Australia under its social and/or political wing. Other countries such as the USA, Canada and the Netherlands ban Hezbollah in its entirety. Is the Australian government considering banning the entire Hezbollah organisation in Australia and, if not, why not? Mr Wilkins: I think it would probably be inappropriate for me to comment on that particular question. I will take it on board. This has only recently gone before the committee of the parliament that looks at these issues. The legislation under which these declarations are made may differ considerably from the legislation that is used overseas. I know, from looking at some cases that I will not go into in detail—because that would be breaching national security—it is sometimes more difficult here to get some of these declarations made than it is under legislation in comparable countries offshore, overseas. Anyway, that is a long way of saying that— Senator ABETZ: But if a country like the Netherlands has come to that conclusion? Some people might assert that the United States is a bit more hairy-chested than others on these issues, but I would have thought one would not assert that about the Netherlands. Mr Wilkins: I am just very careful about making any clear statements in terms of what we may be intending to do or what— Senator ABETZ: And I accept that.	L&C 86 29/05/2013

Is that because his son thought that use of the card was innocent or within the use of entitlement? Mr Bromwich: My knowledge of that matter is limited to what I read about it in the press. I was not with the office at the time; I was at the private bar. I would have to take it on notice to look into that. But the prosecution policy of the Commonwealth has, amongst other things, at its core, two questions: sufficiency of evidence and whether or not a prosecution is in the public interest. All cases are assessed against those two criteria. Whether that was a case of sufficiency of evidence or whether there was a public interest test, I could not say in the abstract.	L&C 78 30/05/2013
