

Public Works Inquiry
Development of off-base
housing for Defence,
Adamstown, NSW

The federal parliament's Joint Standing Committee on Public Works is inquiring into the development of housing by the Defence Housing Authority at Adamstown, near Newcastle, New South Wales. Worth an estimated $21.6 million, the proposed development will provide off-base accommodation for Defence personnel in the Newcastle region.

If you have any comments to make on the development, including its need, cost and value for money, please write by 24 January 2003 to:
