

To whom it may concern, I wish to give my support for the mandatory labeling of Palm Oil products for the Food standards amendment, Truth in labelling Palm Oil Bill 2009. I have tried to avoid using palm oil for years (almost 20yrs) since a trip to Borneo, where I saw what they have done to the forrest and all its inhabitants. It saddened me then as it does now but I am glad that more people are being made aware of it. Baby Orangutans do not belong in nappies but that is what happens to them in the orphanages when their mothers have been killed and they need to be looked after by people. These beautiful creatures should all be protected along with their habitat .I do not want to be supporting an industry that causes so much misery and destruction to a beautiful environment. If Australia wants palm oil why can` t it grow its own? Please do the right thing. Yours sincerely
