

Dear Sir/Madam

For a long time now, I have attempted to buy Australian products, which in turn support Australian jobs. This is not an easy task and when I add to that my conscious need to purchase goods which do not harm the planet, or at least do as little damage as possible, it becomes quite onerous. I have always lived my life from the edict DO NO HARM. I have been saddened to learn of my participation in the deforestation of rain forests and therefore the displacement and endangerment of the Orangutan. I implore you to make it simple for all of us to make an informed choice and identify on the labels the true nature of the ingredients and their derivation.

Yours sincerely
Debbie Fowler
