

Dear Senator Moore

Re: Inquiry into Health Legislation Amendment (Midwives and Nurse Practitioners) Bill 2009 and two related Bills

I write to express my concern about the above bills. I understand that these bills will enable Medicare funding, access to the Pharmaceutical Benefits Scheme and professional indemnity premium support for midwives providing care for women to give birth in hospital.

Medicare funding for midwifery care is long overdue. It is not acceptable however to exclude homebirth from this funding and indemnity arrangement. By doing this Australia is totally out of step with nations such as the United Kingdom, Canada, The Netherlands and New Zealand.

These nations support the rights of women to choose homebirth and fund a registered midwife through their national health scheme. In New Zealand and the U.K women have a legislative right to choose homebirth.

The intersection of this legislation with the national registration and accreditation of health professionals will prevent homebirth midwives from registering. I believe this to be an unintended consequence and ask that you take steps to include homebirth within the Health Legislation Amendment (Midwives and Nurse Practitioners) and related Bills.

I support a system where all consumers are treated equally, with the same access to funding and the same insurance protection.

On a personal note, I have had a wonderful, safe, empowering homebirth myself which contrasted greatly with the frightening, painful experiences I had in hospital. As a midwife I have attended several homebirths and I can attest that they were safe and satisfying for the families concerned. There is plenty of good research which supports women's right to birth at home. If this right is extinguished, a small number of women will "go it alone" which is not safe, and many women will be profoundly unhappy at being told what to do about something as private and personal as the birth of their babies.

Yours sincerely

Alison Reid
