ACCESS - PALS

(PLACES WITH ASSISTIVE LISTENING SYSTEMS)

An Ongoing Project of SHHH Australia Inc (Self Help for Hard of Hearing People)

INTRODUCTION

This edition of ACCESS - PALS (Places with Assistive Listening Systems) is the latest computerised listing of organisations with public access in NSW and ACT (metropolitan and country) that have installed any kind of listening system to assist people with a hearing loss.

Seven headings (or fields) have been used in the data base viz:

Name of organisation

Street ('Church St/Market St' denotes 'corner of Church and Market Streets')

Suburb or Town ('Sydney' denotes a city address)

Postcode

Descriptor 1 (indicates the prime function of the organisation. The list is sorted alphabetically by Descriptor 1)

Descriptor 2 (gives additional information regarding location of the system or systems or further describes the organisation)

System (gives type of system installed or available for use)

NOTE

Telephone numbers can be found in the current Sydney telephone directory or by phoning Directory Assistance. TTY phones, where available, are indicated under System in the listing. The TTY phone number can be obtained from the current Telstra Telephone Typewriter Directory or, in the case of TAFE Colleges and Universities, by contacting Disabilities Service TAFE (9965 6667 TTY or 9965 6298 Voice) or Disability Services in respective Universities:

Terms and abbreviations used are explained, where necessary, under (1) Explanation of Terms and (2) Systems.

..... and a special message to the user

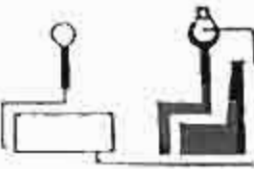

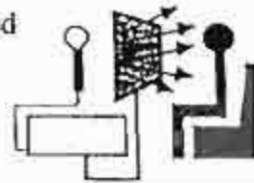

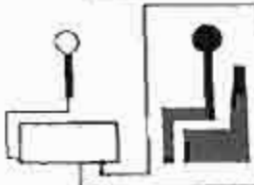

PLEASE

- advise the organisation that you have a hearing loss when you book a theatre seat, attend a church service, etc and ask if there is an assistive listening system
- ask the organisation for details of the system and where you should sit to benefit from it
- advise the organisation immediately if the system is not working
- let the organisation know afterwards how much you have appreciated the installation/availability of a system if it is working
- advise SHHH of any corrections to this list
- advise SHHH if you know of other organisations that have installed listening systems for inclusion in future editions of ACCESS - PALS

TV	Television sets are equipped with sockets (as in hotel/motel accommodation) to take plug-in hearing devices

SYSTEMS

All	All types of listening systems are available for demonstration and/or sale.
Amp	Amplified Sound. If the public address system is of a high quality with well-positioned speakers to suit those with a moderate hearing loss, the organisation has been included.
Amp/HW	Amplified sound with socket(s) for plug-in device(s) at designated seat(s) - see HW below.
Amp/Rec	Amplified sound with recording of proceedings for individual listening later - eg church services.
Amp/Sign	Amplified sound with signing interpreters present - eg church services.
FM	 FM System. A radio system that uses a designated FM radio frequency to carry a signal to receivers or devices used by listeners within a limited range. It will broadcast through walls. Often used on guided tours whereby the tour guide wears a transmitter with microphone and the hearing impaired tour member wears a receiver attached to headphones, earpiece or induction plate.
HW	 Hardwired System. Each listener is directly connected to the sound source. A socket is positioned in a designated seat or in the wall or floor to take a plug-in device with headphones or earpiece provided either by the organisation or by the hearing impaired user.
Infrared	 Infrared System. Sound signals are transmitted in the form of invisible infrared light rays. Listeners use cordless receivers or devices provided by the organisation or by themselves to pick up the signals converting them back into sound. Receivers must be worn in the transmitter's direct line of sight. Enquire from the organisation as to best reception area.
Loop	 Audio Induction Loop System. A microphone or sound source is connected to an amplifier's audio input. This signal is then fed into a coil of wire which is placed round the perimeter of the seating arrangements. A listener within the loop encircled area picks up the signal inductively through a hearing aid equipped with a telecoil (denoted by a "T" position on the aid's on/off switch); or if without hearing aids, by using a receiver or device with a built-in telecoil, volume control and earpiece. Where a loop system is indicated on this list, the whole area or a particular area may be permanently looped or a portable loop is available for use on request. Enquire from the organisation.
Loop/Sign	Audio induction loop system with signing interpreters present.

LOOK FOR THE HEARING ACCESS SYMBOL

The ear symbol means hearing help is available. It should be prominently displayed with appropriate information when an organisation provides an assistive listening system.
