

Dear Mr Humphery,

The single digit inflation is a myth! For the cost of living or necessities of life, inflation hovers between 10% - 20% per annum, any household shopper could verify. Doubly painful for the pre-superannuation aged pensioner, especially since the indexed increases of the pension is calculated to a large extent on items[1] which pensioners sadly have no access to. If this trend continues the aged pensioner, faithful taxpayer for decades, is facing the prospect of homelessness, little health care, because of co-payments to more and more services, or, even starvation on cheap unhealthy food. Most of us are looking for a change of government for this very reason.

1 New cars, computers, home entertainment systems are getting cheaper - still we can't buy them - out of reach!

While those items are getting cheaper, what about meat, vegetables and co-payments?

Kind regards,
Christina and Klaus Bernhard
