

Dear Ministers,

Regarding the proposal to deprive families of a pension if their children do not attend school, please think very carefully before making the poor even poorer. Things are hard enough for some people without making it worse. There are many important issues to be considered in such a move, eg the fact that non-attendance is a symptom of some underlying problem that needs to be addressed. These families need help, definitely not punishment.

Yours respectfully,

Maria A. Dunell
