

To Senators on the Senate Select Committee on Climate Policy,

It would appear that both the American and the Australian government are saying one thing and doing another. Both governments have now lied concerning climate control policies. If our governments continue to be controlled by the banks even your descendants futures will not be guaranteed to be good, regardless of financial position. If we take serious steps to control human pollution now we might actually leave something half decent for our future generations. It is up to you people to see further ahead than the end of your noses and your pockets.
