

To Senators on the Senate Select Committee on Climate Policy,

I have recently upgraded my home to be as energy efficient as possible, and have installed solar hot water and a photovoltaic system for renewable electricity. I am dismayed to find that, with the CPRS in its current form, my actions (and considerable money spent!) amount to nothing. They essentially just free up permits for polluters.

The Australian Government has the opportunity to design a world-leading scheme that does NOT undermine the efforts of its people. I beg you to take this on board, and to re-design the scheme accordingly. Otherwise, how can this CPRS be taken seriously? I voted for this government because I believed you would deliver positive change. Please show me it was worth it.

yours sincerely,

Caitlin McGee
