

Hello

Not sure if this is the correct avenue, but in the light of the senate enquiry regarding this issue, I simply wanted to express a great personal interest in seeing a substantially increased feed-in tariff to help encourage the likes of us (middle-income family with two primary-school-aged kids) to invest in solar panels for our home. This is an area that has enormous potential in terms of environmental & social benefit. Why not follow the example of progressive European countries? (The means test in relation to 8K rebate was retrograde & showed the government is not serious about addressing the climate issue; maybe some amends could be made via an increased feed-in tariff as incentive.)

Can you please forward this to the appropriate person if this is in fact incorrectly addressed. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Mark Landmann
