

I am writing about the Inquiry into the sexualisation of children in the contemporary media environment.

I am a Foster Carer, and I have children in my care that have been a victim to sexual abuse, and I am currently attending counselling with these children, to try to re-write their thinking about themselves and their sexuality. I don't think these children need to see other children in the media, in sexualised ways, perhaps it might even trigger something for children who have been victims to act in an inappropriate way, or for them to behave in other ways, perhaps behavioural.

Not to mention the increase of child paedophilia. We need to take an active stance in protecting our children in every way that is possible, and Adults need to stand up and be a voice.
