

This means test for solar is increasing Australia's green house emissions, solar is too expensive and needs a boost from the taxes we are paying. Lets make our taxes work for our generation which will benefit the next, its an investment of an environmental nature. We live in a country which is optimal for solar, to have Germany leading the way in solar installations and technology in a country which has cloud or fog half the year is egg on our face. The sun shines here 350 days per year and the decision to means test solar installations has pushed the one industry all should be supporting face first into the ground. In a way I think one good thing has come of this which is the fact it's on every ones mind, but they need help to open it with the rebate removed. Removing it will open the flood gates and our contribution to climate change will eco into the future as the decision which helped change the world and influenced other countries to follow suite, lets stop pointing fingers and talking about this. Lets be the generation which saved the next!!!

Kind regards
