

Dear Sir,

Re: Means testing of rebate

I would like to forward a submission regarding the means testing of the solar rebate.

Having recently completed my BCSE Accreditation and I was canvassing possible clients for future installations when the means testing of the rebate came out. 90% of all the interested parties became suddenly dis-interested when told of the means test, either due to prospective clients not wanting to divulge their income or the fact that they failed the income test, most of my leads dried up.

Needless to say in today's Eco-friendly environment, I talked to no-one who could make any sense of this decision. I would like to appear at the up and coming public hearing to voice my opinion of the alterations of the means test.

I look forward to hearing from soon.

Thank you.

Richard James.
