

As an accredited installer I would be glad to attend any gathering that could promote a healthier energy source. I feel that means testing is a wonderful tool to stretch our national resources. However when the average family is not included in this process, i.e. a teacher nurse combination living in Sydney with three children and a mortgage. then the parameters need to be adjusted. $150 thousand earnings will allow the average city dweller access to cleaner sustainable energy, which is in everyone's interest.

Regards
James Mcglone