

Hello,

I would like to put forward my disapproval of the Grid Connect PV means testing.

The Government has put on the table a target of 20% renewable energy by 2020, - this is a great first step and I applaud this goal. However I don't believe the government has done the correct thing in means testing people who are willing to put their own money towards reducing their carbon footprint, reducing their reliance on fossil fuel derived electricity and helping to achieve the 20% renewable energy target.

Most of the people who has sufficient spare capital to install a grid connect PV system are people who are above the $100k threshold.

Please reconsider the means testing.

thanks and regards,
Dean Condon.
