Sir,

The tax free threshold was $5400 for many years which rose to $6000 when G.S.T was started which will in all probability stay at this amount into the distant future. The rebate of $150 for low income persons has remained at this level for many years.

In the 1980's the Government of the day were asking the older workers (55 to 65) to retire if possible to give the young people more access to jobs. What happened instead of lowering the retirement age for men they put up the age for women to 65. In my opinion the age of retirement for all should be 60 with the proviso that one can work longer if they so desired.

Yours faithfully
