

Dear Committee secretary,

Australia has all that is necessary to stand as a totally self sufficient entity, which demands the ownership and self control of its every resource. The transfer of any Australian owned asset such as lands, minerals, water rights etc. to any foreign government or corporation, represents a violation of Australia's sovereignty and future social and economic prosperity. Being absolutely contrary to Australia's national interest, such transfer amounts only to an action of treason.

John and Judith Dingle.
