

From: Colin James
Sent: Tuesday, 28 July 2009
To: Economics, Committee (SEN)
Subject: Solar Power and Global Warming

Hi, the government is in no way trying to do anything about global warming. They just want to talk about it and make all the week minded voters think they are!!!

If the government were fair dinkum about the global worming problem they would stop stuffing around with the small scale solar panel industry.

You want to do something about global warming? Then get a 1.5 kw solar system on every house in Australia, just think about the reduction in power generation from oil and coal.

Get it sorted out, we should not have to pay any tax on the systems and the power companies should not be able to use power generated to sell as they do in WA now.

Colin and Gail James