Subject: The new identity card

Hello,

it just so happened to me that two people somehow got information about me from some leak at Centrelink. I would love to see an identity card for absolutely everyone in Australia, but access to the information should be coupled with a pin number from the card-owner for the different sets of info that are stored there. Let's say you see a doctor, the doctor should type in 'medical' and you type in your pin.

Otherwise it will be abused as humans are fallible.

Regards
