

I would register strong objection to the holding of a plebiscite for an Australian Republic.

The subject is divisive – just what we don't need in these troubled and uncertain times. Furthermore it is a dishonest political ploy which reflects little credit on its originator, for it seeks to bypass the principal issue which, when the time comes, will be the means of implementation.

G.L.Maitland