

From:

Sent:

To:

Subject: Economy means 'home'

The failure of economic rationalism rests on the presuppositions underpinning it. In brief, these are (i) a totally fiscal conception of 'economy' that has overlooked the scope of what 'economy' intends, which, again in brief, is the household or home; (ii) a commitment to an absurdly inappropriate metaphor - 'the level playing field' - which, if true, would have never enabled Captain Cook to discover Australia or Columbus to get to America and so indicative of a stupendous stupidity amongst those committed to it; (iii) an assumption that growth (as in production and consumption) is infinite, which is so obviously false that persistent allegiance to it must be considered to be both an addiction by those maintaining it and criminally negligent to the life-based needs of our children and our children's children.

You are purposed upon a treaty with a country that systematically breaks its agreements and are calling that treaty "free" when it is not.

I earnestly urge you to reconsider an action that has been shown to be of great damage to the Australian people and their way of life.

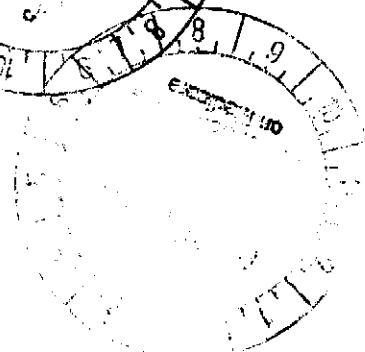

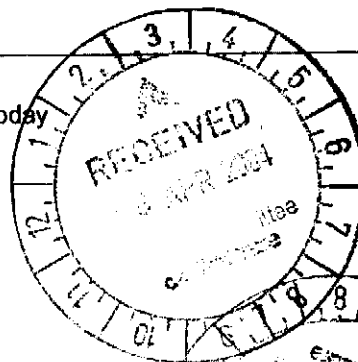

Yours faithfully,

Dr John K. Graham

In the Beginning, if there was a beginning and everything wasn't always changing, there was Energy. And Energy moves in a spiral formation and made everything in the Universe. So the Spiral Works in Concert in all living things Spiral on!

Do you Yahoo!?

Yahoo! Small Business $15K Web Design Giveaway - Enter today

7/04/2004

From: John Graham
Sent: Wednesday, 7 April 2004 2:31 PM
To: FTA, Committee (SEN)
Subject: SUB36

The failure of economic rationalism rests on the presuppositions underpinning it. In brief, these are (i) a totally fiscal conception of 'economy' that has overlooked the scope of what 'economy' intends, which, again in brief, is the household or home; (ii) a commitment to an absurdly inappropriate metaphor - 'the level playing field' - which, if true, would have never enabled Captain Cook to discover Australia or Columbus to get to America and so indicative of a stupendous stupidity amongst those committed to it; (iii) an assumption that growth (as in production and consumption) is infinite, which is so obviously false that persistent allegiance to it must be considered to be both an addiction by those maintaining it and criminally negligent to the life-based needs of our children and our children's children.

You are purposed upon a treaty with a country that systematically breaks its agreements and are calling that treaty "free" when it is not.

I earnestly urge you to reconsider an action that has been shown to be of great damage to the Australian people and their way of life.

Yours faithfully,
Dr John K. Graham

In the Beginning, if there was a beginning and everything wasn't always changing, there was Energy. And Energy moves in a spiral formation and made everything in the Universe. So the Spiral Works in Concert in all living things Spiral on!

Do you Yahoo!?
Yahoo! Small Business \$15K Web Design Giveaway - Enter today