

Dear Sir/Madam,

I thought I lived in a country that believed in freedom of speech.

I thought I lived in a country that believed you were innocent until proven guilty.

I thought I lived in a country that believed every person was entitled to a fair trial with representation.

I thought I lived in a country that allowed me to question our government, beliefs and ideals.

It seems that this is not the case.

The proposed anti-terror legislation restricts my ability as an Australian Citizen to exercise my rights of Freedom of Speech.

I don't want to live in a country like that!
