

I would just like to voice my objection to the new sedition laws being proposed in the coming weeks.....while i still have the opportunity .the tide that's turning in australia at the moment truly frightens me,i can't believe the country that i love could become a place where people live in fear of speaking their minds,or being able to question the policies and practices of our current or any future government without the risk of imprisonment.