

The idea that same sex “couples” can be legally married is ridiculous. Indeed, that they are recognised as couples as it is, seems to be taking Australia in a direction that boggles the mind.

Homosexuality is a danger to society as a whole. Not just the spread of disease, as promiscuity more than aids that already. But, rather, it attacks the very basis of society, families working together. Homosexual’s cannot have their own children, for very obvious reasons, if they choose to adopt, it puts enormous pressure on a system that is already struggling to keep up with childless couples, wishing to have their own children.

Same sex marriage should not be recognised, even if it’s from another country.

I find it fascinating that our government can say the Lord’s Prayer, asking for God to “Deliver us from evil”, yet go directly against the very same Word, and think that such an act is not hypocritical.

Homosexuality can be seen around the world and throughout history as a dividing and destructive force, one that should not be treated as a different lifestyle, but rather as it truly is, an abomination before the Lord, and move forward.

Marriage refers to the unique relationship between a man a woman - a relationship to create the best possible environment to progenerate and raise children. Marriage is the first step in the establishment of the genetic bonds of family.

By encouraging and supporting marriage, society gets the benefit of strong families and communities.

I pray that this Bill is overturned as it should be.
