

Why Australians Must Honour Marriages as Between Men and Women ONLY.

I write as a hypnotherapist who has successfully treated people with RELUCTANT homosexuality due to an UNCONSCIOUS identification with some kind of past event, in which there was trauma of some description, specific exposures to images or words spoken while in an altered state of consciousness, or repeated suggestions, usually by a parent, that resulted in such unconscious identification with homosexuality.

Examples are numerous: a man whose sister was molested by his father and he was traumatised by the graphic details of the deplorable act that he conjured up at the age of 12 that subsequently caused his identification with sex between a male and female was abhorrent; a sixteen year old boy who struggled with homosexual arousals since 11 when he woke up one night, walked into the kitchen and saw the TV still on with two men having sex, and had been having these reluctant thoughts and arousals ever since; a woman who was raped brutally as a young woman and became a lesbian after that event; a man whose mother constantly told him she wished he was a girl; and so on.

If we legalise same sex marriages, we are going to see more of these unconscious identification happening because people get desensitised, or “brain washed” slowly, to view homosexuality as a life style choice, which actually impacts society in the long term in a hugely negative way. Apart from children being confused (homosexuality is NOT a natural order), there are more significant consequences in generations to come.

The Muslim reproductive rate in some Western countries are as high as 2:8 (a couple with 8 children), while in Western cultures only 2:1.7 to 2:2.2 (or thereabouts, from memory). History has shown that the demographics of a country is IRREVERSIBLE below a birth rate of 2:1.9. In other words, if Australians not of the Islamic faith, reproduces below the 1.9 rate and Muslims do (8 in some countries), we will be looking at a demographic distribution of a majority of Muslims, which, in and of itself, is not a problem, except that the Muslim faith openly declares in their holy book, that the objective is to conquer the world and bring unbelieving people into “dhimmitude” (just google the word!), a very scary thought. Not to mention the practice of sharia law, whereby you get your hands and feet amputated for stealing and such forth.

If you don't want your female grand children and great grand children to be covering their bodies from head to toe, walking behind their men, forced with female circumcision and such forth, you need to let marriages stay between men and women ONLY.
