

20th August 2009

To the "Department of the Senate Feedback",

I am 49 years old and I was born and raised in Australia. I am a hard working Australian. I have never gone to the trouble to provide feedback to the Senate however this subject breaks and confuses our understanding in "The family" in Australia.

I understand that the Greens are trying to legalise homosexual marriage through a private Senator's Bill. Please register my formal concern and complaint regarding the Greens continually raising this subject for debate and change. Unfortunately it seems the personal interests of the Leader of the Greens are continually brought forward and not kept in balance with other very important issues we are facing today.

It is my opinion that marriage is about love, commitment, fidelity, and the stable nurturing of children where they are the product of marriage. These qualities are what make marriage the building block of society. This must be retained. Please find another way of dealing with Homosexual Couples without diluting what marriage represents to the vast majority of the Australian population. Please don't dilute what marriage means to the family.

Kind Regards,

Rob Day.