

Dear Senate, Legal and Constitutional Affairs Committee,

Marriage is a right of passage both men and women go through throughout their lives, some more than others, But although thousands of men and women have the right to do it, Many Australians because of their sexual choice. It is not fair it is intolerant and just gay bashing! How can we as the society of Australia say we are accepting and welcome those of all race, gender and choices equally if we cannot allow a simple right of marrying the one you love. It is not fair; it just goes to show that no matter how far we come as a country we will never get past certain points. Personal prejudices are not only outdated apparently.

Sincerely
