Marriage Equality Inquiry

I consider myself very lucky. I grew up in _____ and have had a wonderful up-bringing there. I decided at the age of 18 to move from _____ to _____ to study to become a primary school teacher. I have reached that goal and have been teaching now for three years and have loved every minute of it. Next month in September, something wonderful is going to happen to me. I am not only lucky enough to be in a relationship with someone who I absolutely adore, but we have decided to get married. When I think about this I am brought to tears because I am so happy. I feel so lucky that I am able to get married to my one true love, to someone who makes me feel feelings that aren't able to be described. Anyone who feels this way towards another in their life should be able to do what I have the right to do. And that is get married. If anything were to stop me from doing this in my life, such as a law, I think it would tear me apart. I am lucky, and that is because I happen to be born female and my lover born a man.

Thankyou Sincerely,
