

Simply put, I can see no common sense reason, why my sister who choose a man as her partner should be allowed more legal rights when it comes to marriage when I would, when I choose a woman, we have both studied under the same education system, we both pay taxes and so on.

But for some reasons that have no place in the legalities of running a country and creating laws that govern their citizens I am prohibiting from marrying the person of my choice and in my individual instance which would be a woman.
