Dear Sir,

I ask that you support Bob Brown on the Euthanasia Laws Repeal Bill 2008.

Currently Australians are not offered a choice or option if they are terminally ill. We are supposedly a democratic nation but we are given no option in this country so can not choose when our lives have no quality if and when to end them. There often is very little dignity when offering only existence to terminally ill patients. At a time when added stress should not be allowed to intervene we also add fear from Government bureaucrats. This can sound very much like a 'Little Red Book' which you may have heard of.

I have M.S. - I am able to handle my life currently - no one knows what events may transpire. Why should I not be given an option or choice to terminate my life if and when I choose in the future?

It is a crime to allow my life, and possibly yours, to be decided upon by a group of biased politicians. No humane human would allow the current Bill to stand.

Yours faithfully,
